Libraries have all been providing workforce recovery services for several years, and this need will continue.

- * What is your library already providing to current job seekers?
- * What else could your library offer?
- * Is your community aware of the services available?
- * Who are natural partners in your community to assist you?
- * What does it mean to be a 21st Century job seeker?

As part of a nation-wide initiative, this workshop will answer these questions and more as you take this opportunity to reevaluate and repackage your library services for job seekers. You will gain new ideas from workshop colleagues, as well as librarians across the nation. You will go back to your library with new perspectives and energy for providing workforce recovery services for your library patrons!

12:00pm: Lunch - on your own (a list of local restaurants will be provided)

1:15 - 3:15pm: What Are the Rules for Sex Offenders Using the Public Library?

What are the rules and guidelines for sex offenders using the public library, and where can these be found? Corrections Field Supervisor Mike Johnson will explain the process which occurs when a sex offender is released, and the implications for community agencies, such as libraries. Bring your questions.
